CREDIT INFORMATION

So basically what I do is take your credit information and submit it to the banks.

Now the banks come back with your approval.

Now your approval is based on your current credit history, job position, income levels and a whole bunch of other factors but at the end of the day they will determine your interest rates and terms of the loan.

Unfortunately it is not up to me – if it was I would give you 0% for 10 years –but its just not my money. Does that make sense?
